

PHIL 2200 : Environmental Ethics

Explores issues concerning how humans ought to relate to and interact with their environment as individuals, through organizations and as a species. Examines environmental dilemmas relating to human population, poverty, animal rights, and intrinsic versus instrumental valuations of nature. Upper-level course. Prerequisite: Eligible to enroll in ENGL 1010.

Credits 3.0

Semester Offered

Spring

General Education Areas

Critical Think and Reasoning; Humanities Gen Ed